Issue # 15 - "Trump Blowing it "

Topic - How Trump is failing at everything

President-elect Donald Trump spent the past two years on the campaign trail making dozens of promises about what he would enact on his first day in office.

Now with nearly 100 days complete to accomplish his goals it is time to see how effective he has been. If you watch Rachel Maddow on MSNBC you probably enjoyed her Wednesday 4/23 show. It ran down a list of the things DID - and then had to ROLLBACK.

Oops!: Trump's first 100 days marked by incompetent screw-ups and frantic walk backs.

"If there is something to learn about what Trump in power is going to be like, I think the first 100 days have given us one very clear lesson, right? We know he's trying for the whole dictator thing — no elections, no courts, no resistance, rule by terror," Maddow began her Wednesday night segment. "We know the people of this country aren't having it. But I think what we should also know, what we just lived through in these first 90-plus days thus far, is him screwing up. It's him absolutely blowing it."

"'It's one thing to understand the gravity of his intentions, but I think it is equally important to recognize that he's really bad at everything he tries to do. I don't know if he's bad at good stuff he tries to do, because he's not trying to do much that seems good, but the bad stuff he's trying to do, he's been real bad at that,'" she added. "It hasn't been funny, exactly. It's too disgusting for that. But it has been the proverbial comedy of errors."

She continued, "But the one thing it has consistently also been from the moment he got back to Washington is an unfunny farce, a slapstick mess of reversals and mistakes and 'Oops, let's pretend we didn't do that. Let's try to undo it. Let's hope no one notices just how dumb it was when we really did do it and we can't even really defend it.'"

"The one word that most sums up Donald Trump's term in office thus far, heading to 100 days in... is 'Oops.' Just because they're trying to do really, really bad things doesn't change the fact that they're also just really bad at everything they try to do — which for this country is definitely a curse, but also, in some ways, a blessing," Maddow concluded. "We're heading towards 100 days. There's going to be a lot of look-backs at what Trump has done. Whatever you hear, what anybody says, don't let anybody tell you, this time around, that they are competent."

I think Rachel has it right.

4/18 "This was quite an eye-opener and good read Mike, thank you for sharing.

As I stated previously, middle America tires very quickly of Trump's Autocratic moves of bypassing the laws and protections guaranteed to us through our constitution. The midterm elections I believe will bring about a real pushback from all our many judicial systems and also make substantial changes in our house and senate political majority's to help limit Trump's abuses and his own self ordained powers as the president-commander in chief."
